

monthly reading: n.a.
 area/effective area: 612 cm2/36 cm2
 AVE/effective AVE: 3670 €/214 €

Cultural calendar

BR TATIANA LAZAR

Antonio Sanchez & Migration
December 6, the Radio Hall

Jazz drummer and Oscar winning Birdman score composer Antonio Sanchez and his band Migration will perform for the first time in Romania. For jazz lovers, the Mexican drummer's name is already known, even before his all-percussion soundtrack was featured in Alejandro González Iñárritu's Oscar-winning, 2014 indie drama about a washed-up superhero film star taking a shot at a Broadway play. Sanchez got his start at age 5 in Mexico City, studied at Berklee College of Music and the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, and by the 2000s was playing with Pat Metheny, Chick Corea, Michael Brecker and Gary Burton, among others. Tickets are available in Eventim network and are priced between RON 95 to RON 155.

Tarja Turunen
December 7, the Romanian Athenaeum

The queen of heavy rock is returning to Bucharest, presenting Ave Maria Christmas Tour. The Finnish singer-songwriter, a light lyric soprano with a three-octave vocal range, was previously the lead vocalist in the Finnish symphonic metal band, Nightwish, which she co-founded in 1996 and helped pioneer so-called "opera metal". Since 2006 she has performed solo. Tickets are available in Eventim network and costs from RON 150 to RON 350.

Jurassic Experience
December 7, Sala Palatului

After the launch of the Jurassic World movie, the dinosaur experience continues with an innovative performance for the entire family. Jurassic Experience is the story of the life of the giant mammals, which is originally brought to life, bringing special decors on stage as well as costumes, video projections and special effects. The show is recommended for children aged over three years old. The tickets can be bought from Eventim network for RON 45, RON 70, RON 100, RON 130 and RON 170, VIP seats.

Nightwish
December 10, Romexpo

Being the only show in southeastern Europe by the most famous symphonic metal band in the world, the Nightwish concert can host over 5,000 rock music lovers from Romania, Bulgaria, Greece and other neighboring countries. According to statistics provided by the Facebook platform, Nightwish has over 90,000 fans in Romania. In respect for the tragedy which took place in the Colectiv club, the band has recreated the entire show, the bandleader of Nightwish, Tuomas Holopainen, stated: "In respect of the fallen ones, we won't use any Pyro effects in this show, preparing a special production. The whole Bucharest concert will be dedicated to the memory of the victims of this terrible tragedy." Tickets costs from RON 150 to RON 380.

Oedipe
December 12, the National Opera Bucharest

As author Noel Malcolm describes, Oedipe is one of the least performed masterpieces of the 20th century. Despite George Enescu's self-imposed rules for composing the opera (it should not drag on; the public should not be come bored; the listener should understand the text,) and the initially warm reception of musicians and critics, the opera (which does not feature any love duets) was not a big success with the general public when it first debuted in Paris in March 1936. The National Opera Bucharest has managed to again stage Enescu's only opera, this year's performance being signed by Valentina Carrasco under the wand of Adrian Morar. Tickets' price is between RON 10 and RON 150 and it can be bought online from www.operanb.ro.

editorial@business-review.ro